

The Daily Courant.

Friday, July 27. 1705.

From the Brussels Gazette, dated July 17.

Naples, June 23.

WE daily expect the Squadron of Gallies of Sicily, which are to transport to that Island the Marquis de Bedmar, who is shortly expected here, and for whom our Viceroy has caus'd the best Apartment of the Palace to be fitted up. A Fellow is imprison'd here, who pretending to be a Captain of Foot, took up Money at Interest of several Persons to enable him to raise his Company; his Process is making, and the least Punishment he can expect is to be condemn'd to the Gallies for Life. We have had for some Time very unseasonable Weather here, with stormy Winds which have done great Damage to the Product of the Ground; and the 21st Instant a Flurry of wind overset a Bark near the Castle call'd the Egg, on board which were several Men Women and Children who were going to San Pofilippo.

From the Brussels Gazette, dated July 17.

Rome, June 20, The 17th Don Gerolamo Pamphilio led by the Constable Colonna, and the Daughter of the Duke de Poli led by the Lady of the Constable Colonna, receiv'd in the Church of St. Mary in via the nuptial Benediction from Monsignor the Vicegerent, who impos'd upon them as a Pennance for their clandestine Marriage [of which an Account was given in a former Courant] to beg Pardon of the Duke and Dutcheis of Poli, and to give a Silver Lamp to the said Chnrch. This Morning the Pope assist'd with the sacred College at the Chappel held in the Vatican, for solemnizing the Obsequies of the Emperor Leopold: Mass was celebrated by the Cardinal Nerli, and the funeral Oration was pronounc'd by Signior Bianchini his Holiness's Chamberlain of Honour.

From the Paris Gazette, dated July 25.

Rome, June 30. The 25th of this Month Cardinal Janson acquainted the Pope, that upon Information the Imperialists had fitted out for War some Vessels at Segai to make a Descent at Mesola in the Province of Ferrara, and possess themselves of it as they had done once before, the King of France's Troops had prevented them; but were ready to evacuate it whenever the Pope should think fit; and that in the mean Time they thought themselves able to hinder the Imperialists from making themselves Masters of it, and entering as they had often done into the Territories of the Church. The same day the Marquis de Bedmar, the new Viceroy of Sicily, arriv'd here, with his Lady and Children and a Retinue of 60 Persons. He was met a considerable way out of the City, by the Ambassador and Ambassadors of Spain; and by the Coaches of the Cardinal de Janson. He alighted at the Spanish Ambassador's Palace, where he was lodg'd and entertain'd magnificently. The 27th he went to the Villa Borghese, and the Prince Borghese entertain'd him with all Sorts of Refreshments in great Abundance. The 28th the Cardinal de Johnson treated him very sumptuously, together with the Vice-Queen and the Ambassador and Ambassadors of Spain; and to day the said Viceroy went from hence to Naples, thence, to pass over to Palermo. The Pope has caus'd Signior Cavaletti, the Imperial Ambassador's Gentleman, to be set at Liberty. The Marriage of Don Girolamo Pamphilio with the Daughter of the Duke of Poli, which was contracted in a manner that might have been contested, has been celebrated with all the Solemnity requisite by Consent of the Kindred on both sides, who were treated splendidly in the Villa Pamphilia without the Gate of St. Pancras.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated July 23.

Rome, July 4. The 28th of last Month, the Pope sung the first Vespers in the Cathedral of St. Peter. The next day being the Festival of St. Peter he celebrated Mass likewise in the same Church, read the Gospel in Greek and in Latin, and pronounc'd an eloquent Homily; the sacred College of Cardinals assisting: And 3 Nights successively there were Illuminations and Bonfires in all the Streets of the City, according to Custom. The Marquis de Bedmar having been magnificently treated by the Cardinal de Fourbin, and having had several Conferences with that Prelate and the Duke d' Uzeda Ambassador of Spain, set out from hence the 30th of last Month for Naples, whence he will pass over to Sicily; the said Spanish Ambassador, who is his Brother in Law, accompanied him to Frascati: The Marquis had no Audience of the Pope, because of the Ceremonial, the Popes having always refus'd to let the Viceroy of Sicily sit by them in an Elbow Chair. Signior Cavalletti (of the Cause of whose Imprisonment we gave an Account in our former,) is set at Liberty; but the Count de Lamberg does not take that for Satisfaction; and before he declares what he thinks to be so, waits for an Answer to the Express which he dispatch'd to his Imperial Majesty on that Affair.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated July 24.

Rome, July 4. The Archbishoprick of Avignon, from which Signior Fieschi was remov'd to that of Genoua, is given to Signior Gontieri a Piemontois, who has a great Reputation. The Pope has resolv'd to send an Express to France, as well on Account of the Ministers of the royal Council of Naples, of whom he demands Satisfaction in Favour of the Ecclesiastical Immunities; as on occasion of the French having possess'd themselves of Mezola in the Ferrareze. Advice being come from Madrid that a Person in Holy Orders, who is accus'd of having a Hand in the Conspiracy of Grenada, is put into the Hands of the secular Power to be try'd by them in Virtue of Concessions formerly made by Clement VII. and Paul III. the Pope has appointed a particular Congregation to examine into the whole Affair.

From the Leiden Gazette, &c. dated July 30.

Leiden, July 30. The Letters of the 11th of this Month from Rome tell us, the Entrance of the French into Mesola, had occasion'd much Discourse; that the Pope not content with having express'd great Displeasure at it to the Cardinal de Fourbin in an Audience that Prelate had of him, had likewise sent Orders by an Express to his Nuncio at Paris to make heavy Complaints about it to the King of France, and to desire him to order his Troops to quit the said Place forthwith. These Letters add that in a Congregation held in the Vatican on this Affair, it was propos'd, for preventing all Inconveniences, to purchase of the Duke of Modena the Fief of Mezola which he holds of the Holy See, and to demolish and blow it up, after the French shall upon warning have quitted it: But they likewise add that

Fasquin

Pasquin had taken the Freedom to say, 'This was pure Guinace to delude the Publick, and divert them from inquiring into the secret Contrivances of the Court of Rome and that of France against the Allies. Signior Fieschi, Archbishop of Genoa, return'd to Rome the 8th of July, from the Court of France, where he had been Nuncio Extraordinary; and has given the Pope an Account of the Condition in which he left Affairs at that Court. The Count de Legnaco, Envoy extraordinary of Poland, having that Day Audience of the Pope, delivered to him Letters from King Augustus his Master; in which his said Majesty thanks his Holiness for honouring him with his Protection, desires him to persist in the same Sentiments, and to proceed foundly against the Cardinal Primate of Poland, who notwithstanding the Prohibitions and Threats of the Court of Rome, continues his Intrigues with the Swedes to dethrone him and Crown the pretended new elect King Stanislaus. The Pope that Evening consulted with the Cardinals of the Palace, in his Cabinet, on the Affairs of Poland; and dispatch'd a Courier to Germany and another to France. There was a Report at Rome, that the Pope had granted Leave to King Philip V. to levy the 3d of the Revenues of the Clergy of the Spanish Monarchy, to enable him to maintain the present War; but there was not the least apparent certainty of it.

London, July 27.

Yesterday a Mail arriv'd from Lisbon, with Letters dated the 22d of July: which advise, That the Squadron of 15 Men of War with the Transports having on board the Land Forces, commanded by the Earl of Peterborough, would sail from thence the next day to join the Fleet under Sir Cloudfly Shovel off Cape Spar-el: That the Expedition they go upon was kept secret; tho' was generally believ'd they design to land at Barcelona: That 'twas reported at Lisbon a considerable Number of the Catalonians had taken up Arms for Charles the 3d: And that his said Catholick Majesty would embark on this Squadron, and with him the Prince of Hesse Darmstadt (who some Days before arriv'd at Lisbon,) as also Mr. Methuen Junior, Envoy of England, 800 Dragoons, with their Horses, were embark'd for this Expedition.

Acted but once these Twenty Years.
